ICONOGRAPHIA GYNIATRICA

A Pictorial History of Gynecology and Obstetrics

HAROLD SPEERT, M.D.

WELLCOME MUSEUM OF
THE HISTORY OF MEDICINE

F. A. DAVIS COMPANY, Philadelphia

1973

Fig. 17-79. Femme à sa Toilette. Painting by Louis Leopold Boilly (1761-1845). The woman is taking a douche. The back of the bidet stool holds her toilet accessories.

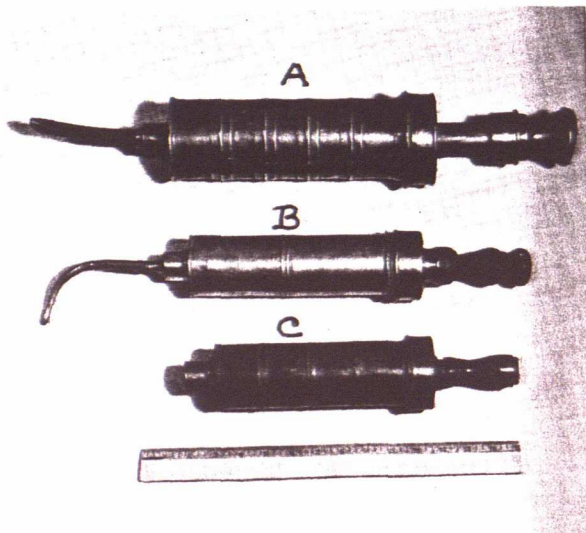

Fig. 17-80. Pewter enema syringes, about 1800. The uppermost (A) weighs 6 pounds, measures $2\frac{1}{2}$ feet with its plunger extended. Before the syringe was invented, enema solutions were blown into the rectum by mouth, through a tube.

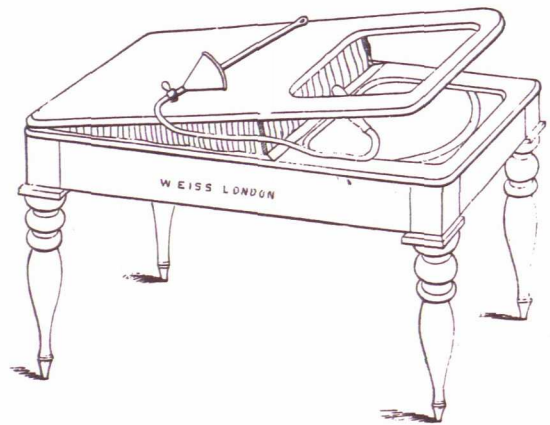

Fig. 17-81. Douching apparatus, advertised in 1867 by a London instrument manufacturer as "easy of application and self acting." The woman, with the douche nozzle in her vagina, sat on a water-filled rubber bag covered by a wooden lid, her weight forcing the water from the bag into her vagina.
